Especially significant is Senator Ball's present attitude in regard to nathonal representation. When the recent hearings on local suffrage began, the senator freely admits, he was opposed to any change in the present the justice of their argument.

"I can see no valid objection to the District of Columbia participating in the election of the President of the United States, and I can see no ob-jection to its having at least one vot-ing representative in the House of Representatives and in the Senate— the body that levies its taxes and makes wars," said Senator Ball at the meeting.

The speaker then outlined some of the reasons why the District should have representation, pointing out the loyalty, high type of citizenship and war records of Washington. war records of Washington.
Credit is due to the able members of the civic organizations of Washington who participated in the recent hearings. H. H. Glassie, James T. Lloyd, Paul E. Lesh, Edwin C. Brandenberg, Theodore W. Noyes and others contributed in a large measure to the effective arguments which were presented in favor of representation in the House and Senate and the electoral college.

A novel system is being inaugurated this year, said the chairman, in regard to the sale of tickets. It is a question of "first come, first served"—that is, the first ones to come to buy tickets will find themselves the nearest to the stage, where the imported dancers and other talent will hold forth during the evening. It is predicted that an early rush of predicted that an early rush of tickets will be the vogee, especially for the nearsighted members of the board.

Three officers of the Washington not believe that this should be made a political matter.

Representatives Frank Millspaugh of Missouri and Thomas W. Harrison of Virginia made brief addresses, both stating that they were glad to get into close touch with the business men of Washington. Mr. Harrison of the Washington Chamber of Commerce were re-elected at the board of directors meeting of that organization last Tuesday night in the Homer building. Arthur E.
